

Hebrew Calendar

The Hebrew calendar is a mix of a lunar and a solar calendar. Months are centered around the lunar cycle, beginning with the appearance of the crescent moon. This system ends up being about 11 days shorter than a solar year, so a leap month is added every three years or so to keep the holidays in line with the correct seasons.